Who Are We

EuroStrings is a platform of European guitar festivals, led by Zagreb Guitar Festival. As the first such platform to be established, it is ever expanding: having started with an initial 14 member festivals in 2018, it now has 17 member festivals in 2020. The project is co-funded by the Creative Europe programme of the European Union and is the first guitar project ever to receive such funding.

EuroStrings also has partners in America and China, making it a truly global project. Each member festival also stages an international guitar competition.

EuroStrings activities include audience development, the creation of new business models, research and development of resources for festival organisers and policy makers but the most important element is the development of emerging young guitarists. To this end, EuroStrings creates a host of performance opportunities for the laureates of its member festivals' guitar competition, called the EuroStrings Exchange Programme. The programme also includes an extensive educational component. Not only do the young performers attend workshops given by master guitarists but they themselves also teach schoolchildren and engage in comprehensive outreach work in the wider community with a range of different groups. The project also provides scholarships for young talented players of modest means.

The EuroStrings Artists for 2019/2020 are the laureates of the international guitar competitions organised by its 17 Platform member festivals during 2019.

EuroStrings is co-funded by the Creative Europe Programme of the European Union for the period of 2017–2021.

OUR OBJECTIVES

- to promote young emerging classical guitar players through concert opportunities, masterclasses, professional development and international competitions;
- to educate young emerging classical guitar players in how to deliver outreach, audience development and work in the community;
- to develop and consolidate the European guitar festival sector through collaboration, information sharing, the building of resources and new technology;
- to develop wider and sustainable audiences for the classical guitar.

WHO ARE THE EUROSTRINGS ARTISTS

To become a EuroStrings Artist you need to win First Prize at one of the international guitar competitions organised by the EuroStrings Platform member festivals. In some cases, another laureate, such as a second prizewinner, can become a EuroStrings Artist, if for instance the first prizewinner has already been a EuroStrings Artist in a previous year. An emerging artist can only be a EuroStrings Artist once.

EUROSTRINGS FEATURED ARTISTS

EuroStrings Featured Artists are well-established professional master guitarists who are widely regarded as the foremost classical guitarists in the world. They will perform concerts, give masterclasses, give advice and help and serve as mentors to the emerging guitarists. They are both inspirational to and aspirational for the younger generation of budding professionals. Each EuroStrings Platform festival will invite a minimum of one EuroStrings Featured Artist to take part in their event.

“...The innovative scope of [EuroStrings] will draw the attention of many people, contributing to the expansion of the guitar audience and highlighting this most wonderful and versatile instrument.”

EUROSTRINGS EXCHANGE PROGRAMME

The EuroStrings Exchange Programme is delivered through the EuroStrings Curriculum which offers the emerging players:

- Solo concerts at EuroStrings Platform festivals around Europe, a minimum of three per year.
- Chamber music concerts, with the EuroStrings Artists playing together.
- Participation in the EuroStrings Guitar Competition.
- Masterclasses with world-famous musicians, including those given by the EuroStrings Featured Artists, a group of the most respected master guitarists in the world.

PARIS INTERNATIONAL GUITAR FESTIVAL

France, 28 November–1 December 2020

The Paris International Guitar Festival, which is celebrating its 16th edition this year, continues in its ambition to promote the classical guitar. For 35 years, Paris was a major international centre for the classical guitar which had at its heart the prestigious International Guitar Competition of Radio France, which was created by Robert J. Vidal (1925–2002). After this event ended in 1996, guitar concerts became a rarity in Parisian cultural life. Addressing this void was the impetus behind the establishment of the Paris International Guitar Festival by the Association 'Vous avez dit guitare?'.

The objective of the annual Paris International Guitar Festival is to offer a high quality programme featuring some of the most prestigious guitar players in the world giving concerts and masterclasses, and to establish an international competition, a luthier exposition and a venue for the promotion of young guitarists.

Portugal, 26 – 30 December 2019

The Festival Internacional de Guitarra de Guimarães is promoted by the Sociedade Musical de Guimarães, under the artistic direction of Portuguese guitarist Nuno Cachada. It aims to strengthen the position and pedagogical approach to the classical guitar and to foster a new attitude towards the classical guitar, which is still undervalued as a solo instrument. The festival has the support of Guimarães City Council as well as several Portuguese and international universities.

Organised for the first time in 2014, the festival immediately attracted more than 100 young guitarists from Portugal and all over Europe to participate in concerts, masterclasses, workshops and its international guitar competition. The following editions have reinforced and even extended these strands to include musicological research and conferences held in partnership with the University of Minho and specialist guitar researchers.
